

The Tragical Historie of Hamlet Prince of Denmarke

Табл.2

Q₂

The Arden Shakespeare Hamlet / Ed. by Ann Thompson and Neil Taylor, 2007 (2006). – P. 424-9

[Enter: K[ing]. Q[ueen]. Laertes and the corpse.] F: [Enter King, Queen, Laertes, and a Coffin, with Lords attendant]	1 ⁰	1 ¹ 1 ²	Enter KING, QUEEN, LAERTES and [other Lords, with a Priest after] the corpse.
Couch we awhile and mark.	6	6 ¹	[Hamlet and Horatio stand aside.]
Ham. That is Laertes a very noble youth, mark.	8	8 ¹	HAMLET [aside to Horatio] That is Laertes – a very noble youth, mark.
Ham. What, the fair Ophelia.	28	28 ¹	HAMLET [aside to Horatio] What, the fair Ophelia?
Till I have caught her once more in mine arms; F: [Leaps in the grave.]	36 36 ⁰	36 ¹	LAERTES [Leaps in the grave.]
Ham. What is he whose grief	40	40 ¹	HAMLET [Comes forward.] What is he whose grief
Hamlet the Dane. Laer. The devil take thy soul.	43 44	43 44 ¹	Hamlet the Dane. LAERTES [Leaps out and grapples with him.] The devil take thy soul!